

ADT IN FILM, TELEVISION AND ELECTRONIC MEDIA

The Associate in Science for Transfer Degree in Film, Television and Electronic Media is designed to develop performance skills in film, television and digital media studies. Course offerings will include aesthetics, history and production and to provide professional training at the beginning level. The Associate in Science for Transfer Degree in Film, Television and Electronic Media emphasizes a broad spectrum of experience in the creation of video productions as well as an interdisciplinary approach to film study. Students and faculty work collaboratively, creating a foundation in the aesthetic, practical, and historical study of film, television, radio and digital media. Students who complete this degree will be guaranteed admission with junior status to the California State University system, and will be given priority admission to our local CSU campus.
